Knight Fever - A Synopsis

The Kingdom of Camelot is under threat from the nasty Black Knight and his evil minion, Chardonnay La Fay. When the Black Knight and Chardonnay capture the visiting Princess, it seems King Arthur, the beautiful Queen Guinevere, the King's knights, and the magician Merlin will be unable to avert disaster!

But brave Justin, a humble stable boy with dreams to become a Knight of the Round Table, is quick to step into the breach. With the help (or should that be hindrance!) of Lester the Court Jester and dotty Dame Doris, and gifts from a stand-in Lady of the Lake, they set off on a quest to free the Princess and save the kingdom from disaster.

This is a very silly family pantomime set in Arthurian times, with knights, wizards, a return to disco, an extremely dangerous jousting match, a very grumpy dragon and lots and lots of daft jokes, fun songs and audience participation!

Please Note!

Tonight's show uses a strobe light and other special effects (the use of foul weather gear and chain mail is up to you). Please keep the center aisle clear for the use of our actors!

The Director

Marc Ellam - Knock knock. Who's there? The director. The director who?
The director isn't quite right, is he? In his 8th season with SMP, and his first at the directing helm, you'll forgive Marc's excitement at the chance to use live alligators in the show! No? Aw c'mon - it'll be hilarious! Damn you insurance company!

Marc would like to thank the most awesome, talented & hard working cast and crew in the history of theatre for enduring his idea of funny. Sit back, relax, & enjoy! But please, watch your children's fingers...those aren't green kittens on the stage!
